TAMESIDE TRANSPORT

Education workshops at Portland Basin Museum

From pack horse and narrowboats to trains and trams, this workshop covers how transport in Tameside has changed over the years to accommodate the changing needs of both industry and the people. Participants will meet our costumed facilitator who will take them on a journey discovering what life was like living on a working narrowboat, how things changed with the coming of the railways and how we use different modes of transport today.

"The children have learnt about transport from different ages and how people lived 100's of years ago."
